Welcome

Welcome to Wine&Co. — your destination for premium wines, thoughtful subscriptions and luxury gifting.

THE WINELANDS AT GOLDEN HOUR

Every bottle tells a story. It speaks of a particular hillside, a particular season, and the patient hands that guided it from vine to glass. At Wine&Co., we believe that discovering wine should be as pleasurable as drinking it — unhurried, curious and free of pretension. This guide was created to be your companion on that journey.

In the pages that follow, we travel from the ancient origins of winemaking to the sun-drenched valleys of the Cape Winelands. We explore the noble grape varieties, learn how to taste with intention, and discover the simple principles that make food and wine sing together. Whether you are opening your very first bottle or planning the cellar of your dreams, there is something here for you.

Wine is, at its heart, an act of hospitality. It is the bottle brought to a friend's table, the toast at a celebration, the quiet glass at the end of a long day. Our hope is that this guide helps you choose with confidence, serve with flair and savour every moment. Pour yourself something lovely, settle in, and let's begin.

Wine is bottled poetry — and every great bottle begins with a story worth telling.

The Story of Wine

From ancient vineyards to your table

Wine has connected cultures for thousands of years. Archaeological evidence points to winemaking in the South Caucasus some eight millennia ago, where early vintners fermented grapes in great clay vessels buried in the earth. From there, viticulture travelled with Phoenician traders across the Mediterranean, was refined by the Greeks, and spread through Europe under the Romans, who planted vines from Iberia to the Rhine.

Through the Middle Ages, monasteries became the guardians of winemaking knowledge, mapping vineyards and refining techniques vintage after vintage. The age of exploration carried the vine to the Americas, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand — and with it, an entirely new chapter of the wine story began. Today, wine is made on every continent except Antarctica, yet the essentials remain unchanged: ripe grapes, fermentation and time.

From vineyard to bottle: harvest, fermentation, ageing and bottling — four patient acts of transformation.

HOW WINE IS MADE

HARVEST

Grapes are picked at perfect ripeness, by hand or machine, when sugar, acid and flavour are in balance.

CRUSH

The fruit is destemmed and gently pressed — skins included for reds, juice only for most whites.

FERMENT

Yeast converts grape sugar into alcohol, releasing aroma and transforming juice into wine.

AGE

The young wine rests in stainless steel or oak barrels, softening, deepening and gaining complexity.

BOTTLE

Finally the wine is fined, filtered and bottled — ready to travel from the cellar to your glass.

RESTING IN OAK — WHERE WINE BECOMES ITSELF

Terroir

A sense of place, captured in a glass

Climate, soil and altitude shape every bottle — the French call this invisible signature terroir.

No two vineyards on earth are identical. The angle of a slope, the minerals beneath the vines, the cool of evening air drifting down a valley — all of it leaves an imprint on the wine. Terroir is why the same grape variety can taste bold and generous in one valley and lean and mineral in another.

MOUNTAIN TERRACES — ALTITUDE WRITTEN INTO THE WINE

ELEMENT 01

Climate

Warm regions yield ripe, generous wines with soft acidity and fuller body. Cool regions slow the ripening, preserving freshness, elegance and aromatic lift. Ocean breezes, morning mists and mountain shadows all play their part in the character of the final wine.

Soil

Granite, shale, limestone, clay — each soil drains, warms and nourishes differently. Poor, stony soils stress the vine into producing fewer, more concentrated berries, while rich soils give abundant, fruit-forward crops. Great wines so often begin in humble ground.

ELEMENT 03

Altitude

High-altitude vineyards enjoy intense sunlight by day and bracing cool by night. This wide swing between warm and cool locks in colour and flavour while keeping acidity bright — the signature of many of the world's most refined wines.

Great wine is not made in the cellar. It is grown in the vineyard.

Old World & New World

Two philosophies, one shared passion

Wine lovers often divide the world in two. The Old World — the traditional wine regions of Europe — values restraint, tradition and the expression of place above all. The New World — South Africa, Australia, Chile, the USA and beyond — embraces sunshine, innovation and bold, fruit-driven flavour. Neither is better; they are simply different accents of the same language.

TRADITION

The Old World

France, Italy, Spain, Germany and Portugal have cultivated vines for centuries. Wines are typically named for their region rather than their grape — think Bordeaux, Chianti or Rioja — and are crafted with food in mind: drier, more savoury, with earthy complexity and firm structure.

Expect: elegance, minerality, restraint and a deep sense of heritage in every glass.

INNOVATION

The New World

In South Africa, Australia, Chile, Argentina, New Zealand and the United States, winemakers work with fewer rules and abundant sunshine. Wines are labelled by grape variety, making them wonderfully approachable, and the style tends towards ripe fruit, generous body and expressive aroma.

Expect: vibrant fruit, plush texture, modern techniques and exceptional value.

South African Wine

A world-class producer with remarkable diversity

Between two oceans, beneath the African sun, the Cape produces wines of genuine world stature.

THE CAPE WINELANDS — VINEYARDS BENEATH ANCIENT MOUNTAINS

South Africa's winemaking story began in 1659, when the first grapes were pressed at the Cape of Good Hope. Within decades, the sweet wines of Constantia had become the toast of European courts — poured in palaces and praised by poets. Few wine countries can claim such a romantic beginning.

Today the Cape Winelands stretch across a breathtaking mosaic of valleys and mountains, where ancient soils meet cooling ocean breezes from the Atlantic and the Indian Ocean. This unique geography allows an extraordinary range of styles: stately Cabernet Sauvignon from Stellenbosch, elegant Méthode Cap Classique sparkling wines, characterful old-vine Chenin Blanc, and Pinotage — the country's very own signature grape.

What makes South African wine so compelling is its balance of Old World structure and New World generosity — sunshine in the fruit, freshness and poise in the glass. It is easy to see why the Cape belongs on every wine lover's map.

Sunshine in the fruit, ocean in the breeze — the Cape in every glass.

Three Regions to Know

Stellenbosch · Franschhoek · Swartland

REGION 01 · CABERNET COUNTRY

Stellenbosch

Home to premium Cabernet Sauvignon, Stellenbosch is the historic heart of Cape wine — a university town ringed by mountain-sheltered vineyards. Its warm days and ocean-cooled evenings produce reds of depth and polish: Cabernet Sauvignon and Bordeaux-style blends with dark berry fruit, cedar notes and firm, age-worthy structure. The region also excels with Shiraz and finely crafted Chenin Blanc.

REGION 02 · THE FRENCH CORNER

Franschhoek

Settled by French Huguenots in the seventeenth century, Franschhoek — "the French corner" — pairs Old World heritage with Cape sunshine. The valley is celebrated for its sparkling wines made in the traditional method, known as Méthode Cap Classique, alongside refined Chardonnay and elegant reds. It is also the culinary capital of the Winelands, where fine dining and fine wine meet.

REGION 03 · THE INNOVATORS

Swartland

The Swartland — "the black land" — is the Cape's most exciting frontier. Dry-farmed bush vines, many of them decades old, yield small harvests of intensely flavoured grapes. A community of innovative winemakers crafts characterful Rhône-style blends, textured Chenin Blanc and savoury Shiraz here, favouring minimal intervention and honest expression of the land.

Three valleys, three voices — together they sing the song of the Cape.

The Noble Reds

Cabernet Sauvignon · Merlot · Shiraz

Cabernet Sauvignon

BOLD · STRUCTURED · PERFECT WITH STEAK

The king of red grapes gives full-bodied wines with firm tannins, deep colour and remarkable ageing potential. In the glass: blackcurrant, dark cherry, cedar and a hint of green pepper.

| Serve with: ribeye steak, roast lamb, aged cheddar.

Merlot

SMOOTH · APPROACHABLE · VERSATILE

The velvet glove to Cabernet's iron fist: plush, rounded and generous, with ripe plum, chocolate and soft herbs. Its gentle tannins make it a welcoming choice for newer wine drinkers.

| Serve with: roast chicken, mushroom dishes, rich pasta.

Shiraz

RICH · PEPPY · DISTINCTLY SPICED

Known as Syrah in France, Shiraz thrives under the Cape sun, brimming with dark berry fruit, black pepper, smoked meat and warm spice — from elegant and savoury to bold and opulent.

| Serve with: braai meats, spiced stews, smoky barbecue.

THE POUR — RUBY DEPTHS OF THE NOBLE REDS

Pinotage & Pinot Noir

The signature and the sophisticate

Pinotage

SOUTH AFRICA'S SIGNATURE GRAPE

Born at the Cape in 1925 from a crossing of Pinot Noir and Cinsault, Pinotage is found almost nowhere else on earth. At its best it offers bold dark fruit — blackberry and mulberry — wrapped in smoky, earthy notes with hints of mocha. To taste Pinotage is to taste South Africa itself: distinctive, warm-hearted and full of personality.

Serve with: braai lamb chops, bobotie, venison.

Pinot Noir

ELEGANT · DELICATE · THE HEARTBREAK GRAPE

The most finicky of all great grapes — thin-skinned, temperamental and utterly beguiling when it succeeds. It yields pale, silky reds of haunting perfume: red cherry, raspberry, rose petal and subtle spice. In the Cape's cooler pockets it finds beautiful expression, all finesse rather than power.

Serve with: duck breast, grilled salmon, mushroom risotto.

SILK & PERFUME — PINOT IN THE GLASS

Pinotage has the swagger of the Cape; Pinot Noir, the poetry of Burgundy. Together they show wine's wonderful range.

The Classic Whites

Chardonnay · Sauvignon Blanc · Chenin Blanc

Chardonnay

FROM CRISP TO BUTTERY

The world's most versatile white grape. Unoaked styles are crisp and mineral, with green apple and citrus; barrel-aged versions turn rich and creamy, layered with vanilla, toast and butter.

Serve with: unoaked — oysters and grilled fish; oaked — creamy chicken and lobster.

Sauvignon Blanc

FRESH · VIBRANT · AROMATIC

Instantly recognisable by its zesty perfume of gooseberry, passion fruit, cut grass and lime, Sauvignon Blanc is the ultimate refresher — bright acidity, light body, pure energy in the glass.

Serve with: goat's cheese, green salads, sushi, fresh herbs.

Chenin Blanc

SOUTH AFRICA'S FLAGSHIP WHITE

The Cape's most planted variety and its quiet treasure, dazzling in every register — bone-dry and mineral, rich and honeyed, even sparkling — with quince, apple, honey and chamomile.

Serve with: roast pork, spicy Asian dishes, smoked chicken.

CHILLED & BRIGHT — THE CLASSIC WHITES

Rosé, Sparkling & Dessert

Light hearts, bright bubbles and sweet finishes

Rosé

LIGHT · REFRESHING · ENDLESSLY SOCIABLE

Made by giving red grapes the briefest contact with their skins, rosé captures the freshness of a white with a whisper of red-berry charm — strawberry, watermelon and rose petal. Served well chilled, it is the wine of long lunches and golden afternoons.

Sparkling Wines

PERFECT FOR CELEBRATIONS

In the traditional method — as with Champagne and the Cape's own Méthode Cap Classique — the wine gains its sparkle through a second fermentation in the bottle, emerging fine-beaded and complex, with citrus, brioche and toasted almond.

Dessert Wines

SWEET FINISHES

The final flourish of a memorable meal. Whether late-harvested, noble-rotted or fortified in the style of Port, dessert wines concentrate honey, apricot and marmalade into liquid gold. The Cape's historic Constantia sweet wines remain a proud benchmark.

THE BEAD — BUBBLES WORTH
CELEBRATING

Champagne for the triumph, rosé for the afternoon, and something sweet for the ending.

Decoding the Wine Label

Producer, vintage and region — the story on the bottle

A wine label is a small act of communication between the winemaker and you. Once you know what to look for, a glance at the bottle tells you what to expect in the glass — where the wine comes from, what it is made of, and how it is likely to taste.

PRODUCER

The estate or brand behind the wine — your mark of craftsmanship, style and consistency from vintage to vintage.

GRAPE VARIETY

The variety shapes the wine's personality: fruit, body, tannin and aroma. New World labels name the grape proudly.

REGION

Origin is destiny. A named region signals terroir and, in many countries, strict quality regulations behind the wine.

VINTAGE

The year the grapes were harvested. Weather varies by season, so vintages differ — and the date tells you the wine's age.

ALCOHOL

A quiet clue to style: higher alcohol often means a warmer climate and a riper, fuller-bodied wine.

The front label charms you; the back label informs you. A wise buyer reads both.

Turn the bottle around and the story continues. Back labels often reveal how the wine was made — oak or steel, dry or off-dry — along with the winemaker's own tasting notes, food suggestions and, on fine bottles, awards and accolades. Terms worth knowing: Reserve generally signals a producer's premium tier; Estate means the grapes were grown on the property itself; and Old Vine promises the concentration that only venerable vineyards can give.

Glassware & Serving Temperatures

Choosing the right glass — and serving each style correctly

THE RIGHT GLASS

The shape of a glass directs wine to different parts of the palate and gathers its aromas. A few simple rules will serve you beautifully.

- Red wines — a large, rounded bowl gives bold reds room to breathe and softens their tannins.
- White wines — a smaller, narrower bowl preserves delicate aromas and keeps the wine cool.
- Sparkling — a tall flute or tulip concentrates the bubbles and lifts the bouquet.
- One rule above all — fill only a third of the glass, leaving space to swirl.

SERVING TEMPERATURES

STYLE	SERVE AT
Sparkling	Well chilled · 6–8°C
Light whites & rosé	Chilled · 7–10°C
Full-bodied whites	Lightly chilled · 10–13°C
Light reds	Cool · 12–14°C
Full-bodied reds	Cool room · 15–18°C
Dessert & fortified	Lightly chilled · 8–12°C

*Too cold, and a wine goes silent; too warm, and it turns flabby.
Temperature is the quiet art of serving well.*

A red served slightly too warm tastes alcoholic and heavy — twenty minutes in the fridge restores its poise. A white served ice-cold hides its perfume — let it rest in the glass a moment. When in doubt, err on the cool side; the wine will always warm gently towards its best self.

Opening & Decanting

Corkscrews, ceremony and letting the wine breathe

OPENING WITH GRACE

The Still Wine

Cut the foil cleanly below the lip of the bottle. Wipe the rim, set the corkscrew dead centre and draw the cork slowly and steadily — a soft sigh, never a pop. Present the cork, pour a small taste for the host, then serve guests before yourself.

The Sparkling Wine

Chill well, remove the foil and cage while holding the cork, then tilt the bottle and turn the bottle — not the cork — easing it free with a gentle whisper. The quieter the opening, the finer the host.

WHY & WHEN TO DECANT

Decanting is simply pouring wine from its bottle into a carafe — and it works two small miracles at once.

- Aeration — air softens tannins and wakes up young, tightly wound reds. Give bold wines an hour or two of breathing room.
- Sediment — mature reds often throw a natural deposit. Decanting leaves the sediment behind for a clear, graceful pour.
- How long? — young, powerful reds: 1–2 hours. Lighter reds: 30 minutes. Very old wines: decant gently and serve at once.
- No decanter? — any clean glass jug will do. Even a vigorous swirl in the glass helps.

Decanting is hospitality in slow motion — a promise to your guests that something special is on its way.

LETTING THE WINE BREATHE

The Art of Tasting

See · Swirl · Smell · Sip · Savour

Tasting well is not a gift — it is a habit. Five small steps turn every glass into a discovery.

See

Hold the glass against white light and look. Colour hints at age and style: youthful reds glow purple, maturing ones fade to brick; whites deepen from pale straw to gold. Clarity and legs tell their own quiet stories.

Swirl

Give the glass a gentle swirl. This releases the wine's aromatic compounds into the air and coats the bowl, so that what follows — the smelling — is richer and more revealing.

Smell

Bring the glass to your nose and breathe in deeply. Most of what we call taste is really aroma. Ask simple questions: fruit or earth? Fresh or evolved? Citrus, berries, flowers, spice, oak?

Sip

Take a small sip and let it travel across your whole palate. Notice sweetness on the tip of the tongue, acidity at the sides, tannin on the gums, and the weight of the wine — light as water or full as cream.

Savour

Finally, notice the finish — how long the flavours linger after you swallow. A long, evolving finish is the hallmark of a fine wine. This is the moment to decide: did the wine delight you?

There are no wrong answers in tasting — only wines you love and wines you are yet to love.

THE TASTING FLIGHT — COMPARE, CONTRAST, DISCOVER

A World of Aromas

Fruit, floral, spice and oak — a map for your nose

A single glass can hold dozens of aromas, layered one upon another. Sommeliers group them into families: primary aromas from the grape itself, secondary aromas from fermentation, and tertiary notes that develop with age. Use the families below as signposts for your own tasting.

Fruit

Citrus, green apple and pear in whites; red cherry and raspberry in lighter reds; blackberry, plum and cassis in the boldest bottles. Dried and stewed fruits suggest ripeness or age.

Floral

Rose petal in Pinot Noir, orange blossom in aromatic whites, violet in elegant reds. Floral notes often mark a cool climate and a gentle hand in the cellar.

Spice & Herb

Black pepper in Shiraz, cinnamon and clove from oak, fynbos and dried herbs in Cape reds, cut grass and gooseberry in Sauvignon Blanc.

Oak & Toast

Vanilla, cedar, smoke, mocha and toast — the signature of time spent in barrel. Well-judged oak frames the fruit; it should never overwhelm it.

Earth & Mineral

Forest floor, mushroom, wet stone, flint and sea breeze. These savoury notes speak most clearly of terroir — the place beneath the wine.

Age & Evolution

With time, fruit gives way to leather, tobacco, honey, truffle and dried fig. Tertiary aromas are the reward of patience — the wine's final, most complex voice.

*Name what you smell and you will remember what you taste.
Language is the taster's finest tool.*

Pairing Basics

Balance food and wine — and let each lift the other

A great pairing is a conversation: the food and the wine should each make the other taste better.

Forget rigid rules; think in terms of balance. The single most important principle is weight: delicate dishes want delicate wines, and hearty dishes want hearty wines. A fragile sole would vanish beside a mighty Cabernet, just as a rich stew would overwhelm a whisper-light Pinot Grigio.

Next, consider the elements. Acidity in wine loves acidity in food and cuts through richness — a zesty Sauvignon Blanc is magnificent with creamy goat's cheese. Tannin softens against protein and fat, which is why steak and Cabernet are old friends. Sweetness in a dish must be matched or exceeded by the wine, or the wine will taste sour and thin. And salt is a wine's friend, making everything taste fruitier and softer.

Two strategies guide every successful match. Congruent pairing mirrors flavours — earthy wine with earthy mushrooms. Contrast pairing plays opposites — crisp sparkling wine against salty, fried food. Both work; the fun lies in discovering which you prefer. Trust your palate, keep notes, and remember: the best pairing is always the one you enjoy.

Match Weight

Light food, light wine. Rich food, rich wine. Balance is everything.

Mind the Elements

Acid cuts fat; tannin loves protein; sweetness must be matched; salt flatters wine.

Mirror or Contrast

Pair like with like, or set opposites dancing. Both paths lead to delight.

Red & White Pairings

Trusted companions for every bottle

WITH RED WINE

Structured reds love protein, char and richness.

- Steak — Cabernet Sauvignon's tannins melt against a perfectly grilled ribeye.
- Burgers — juicy, smoky patties meet their match in plush Merlot.
- Biltong — a proudly South African pairing for bold Shiraz or Pinotage.
- Mature cheese — aged cheddar and gouda stand up beautifully to full reds.
- Roast lamb — herbs, garlic and a Bordeaux-style blend: a Sunday classic.

WITH WHITE WINE

Crisp whites adore freshness, salt and gentle spice.

- Seafood — Sauvignon Blanc with oysters, grilled line fish and prawns.
- Chicken — roast chicken sings beside a creamy, oaked Chardonnay.
- Popcorn — buttery kernels and buttery Chardonnay: movie night, elevated.
- Salted nuts — salt flatters wine; a crisp Chenin Blanc makes it shine.
- Sushi — clean, delicate flavours want a clean, delicate white.

Rule of thumb: what grows together, goes together — regional dishes and regional wines are old sweethearts.

STEAK & CABERNET — AN OLD FRIENDSHIP

Rosé, Bubbles, Chocolate & Cheese

The social wines — and two classic indulgences

ROSÉ PAIRINGS

The All-Day Wine

Dry rosé is astonishingly versatile — red-berry fruit with white-wine freshness.

- Pizza — tomato's acidity loves rosé's bright fruit.
- Tapas — a little of everything calls for a wine that does everything.
- Olives & mezze — Mediterranean bites, Mediterranean-style wine.

CHOCOLATE & WINE

A Decadent Duet

The secret is matching intensity: the wine must be at least as sweet and rich as the chocolate. Dark chocolate finds a magnificent partner in a bold Cabernet Sauvignon or a glass of Port-style fortified wine; milk chocolate loves a soft, fruity red; white chocolate calls for something gently sweet.

SPARKLING PAIRINGS

The Celebration Wine

Bubbles and bright acidity scrub the palate clean — sparkling wine is secretly the best food wine of all.

- Sushi — purity meets purity; the bead lifts every bite.
- Strawberries — the classic toast of summer celebrations.
- Celebrations — any moment worth marking deserves MCC.

THE CHEESE GUIDE

Four Classics, Four Wines

- Cheddar — firm and savoury: Cabernet Sauvignon.
- Brie — creamy and mild: oaked Chardonnay.
- Camembert — earthy and soft: elegant Pinot Noir.
- Blue — bold and salty: sweet dessert wine or Port-style.

Building a Collection

Start small, store well, dream of the perfect cellar

A wine collection need not begin with a grand cellar — it begins with curiosity. Start small: a case of wines you love, a few bottles from regions you want to explore, one or two special bottles to lay down for future celebrations. Diversify across styles and vintages, and keep notes of what you buy, what you paid and when you plan to drink it.

Storage matters more than most people realise. Wine asks for three simple things: cool (a steady 12–15°C is ideal), dark (light degrades wine over time), and still (vibration disturbs a wine's rest). Bottles sealed with cork should lie on their sides, keeping the cork moist and the seal tight. A quiet cupboard away from the kitchen often serves beautifully.

When the collection outgrows the cupboard, the dream cellar beckons. Plan for capacity beyond your current needs, steady temperature and humidity, good shelving that cradles bottles horizontally, and a simple system so that every bottle is easy to find. Whether a dedicated cooling unit, a converted room or a bespoke underground space, a well-planned cellar protects your investment and turns choosing a bottle into a daily pleasure.

RULE 01

Cool & Steady

Around 12–15°C with minimal fluctuation — consistency matters more than the exact number.

RULE 02

Dark & Still

Away from sunlight, heat and vibration. Wine matures best in undisturbed rest.

RULE 03

On Its Side

Cork-sealed bottles rest horizontally, keeping corks supple and airtight for years.

THE DREAM CELLAR — A ROOM BUILT AROUND BOTTLES

Hosting & Corporate Gifting

Create memorable evenings — and gifts that linger in the memory

THE ART OF HOSTING

A memorable wine evening is about generosity, not grandeur. A few thoughtful touches turn a simple tasting into an occasion.

- Choose a theme — one grape, one region, or Old World versus New. A story gives the evening shape.
- Three to five wines — enough for discovery, few enough to savour each properly.
- Serve in order — bubbles first, then whites, then reds from light to bold, and something sweet to close.
- Keep food simple — bread, cheese, charcuterie and water let the wines take centre stage.
- Provide tasting cards — invite guests to note what they smell, taste and love.

CORPORATE GIFTING

Few gifts carry the warmth and polish of fine wine. Wine&Co.'s corporate gifting service curates premium bottles and luxury hampers tailored to your brand and your recipients.

Luxury, Made Effortless

From elegant single-bottle presentations to grand festive hampers, every gift is hand-packed, beautifully finished and delivered with care. Add branded cards, personalised notes or bespoke engraving to make each gift unmistakably yours.
